

Participation Now!
Citizenship Education and Democracy in Times of Change

21-24 November 2012
 Córdoba, Spain

Fact Sheet

Forum 4
Web 2.0: Digital participation and online tools for citizenship education

	Section	Indications of content
1	Title of project	MorsiMeter
2	Location	Cairo / Egypt
3	Main topics/ key words	Performance assessment/ Open governance/citizen education/ Government monitoring/Transparency
4	Brief description of topic or project	For the first time in the election history of Egypt, the Middle East and the Arab Region, a digital initiative sets out to follow and evaluate democratic change. MorsiMeter, an interactive website, attempts to monitor the performance of the recently elected Egyptian president, Mohamed Morsi, by documenting what has actually been achieved in contrast to campaign promises. MorsiMeter has itemized the list of Morsi's ambitious election commitments and plans to track his progress in achieving them. Content categories include Sanitation, Security, Bread, Fuel, and Traffic. When and if Morsi completes a self-assigned task, the site will mark the commitment as fulfilled. A tracking form in the header shows what percentage of Morsi's commitments has been completed, alongside a countdown of the first 100 days of his new government.
5	Objectives	This initiative aims to monitor the performance of Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi in his first 100 days in power. The digital initiative defines itself as a "data-tool" that helps citizens to evaluate the performance based on facts/numbers rather than emotion and intuition.
5	Target Groups	Citizens, especially those who have access to internet.
6	Methods / Format	Website
7	Results / Evaluation / Materials	The initiative that has attracted wide global attention, has more than 120,000 fans on Facebook and 30,000 followers on Twitter, in addition to around 6,000 visits daily on the web page.
8	Sustainable impact of topic or project (local, regional)	The Electionnaire Tunisia was the result of intensive interaction between the local partner and involved experts, as well as political parties. The local partner played a central role in every phase of the project and would therefore be able to implement the project in the next elections.

10	Contact information of presenting persons (first name, surname, postal address, name of organisation, e-mail address, phone)	Amr Sobhy Email: amrsobhy@gmail.com Phone: +201060688777
----	---	--