Curriculum Vitae

Charles Powell

Assistant Director, Research and Analysis, REAL INSTITUTO ELCANO: Charles Powell has a doctorate in History from Oxford University, where he was the J.A. Pye Junior Research Fellow at University College, and a Research Fellow at St. Antony's College, where he coordinated the Contemporary Spanish Studies programme under the supervision of Sir Raymond Carr. He was subsequently History lecturer at Corpus Christi and University College, Oxford.

His publications on Spanish politics include El Piloto del Cambio. El Rey, la Monarquía y la Transición a la Democracia (Espejo de España Prize; Planeta, 1991) and España en Democracia, 1975-2000 (Así Fue Prize; Plaza & Janés, 2001).

Between 1998 and 2002 he was Deputy Director of the European Studies programme at the Instituto Universitario Ortega y Gasset and in 2000-2002 was also Deputy Director of the Centro Español de Relaciones Internacionales (Fundación José Ortega y Gasset). He is currently Professor of Spanish History at the Universidad San Pablo-CEU.

In recent years his work has centred on Spanish foreign policy and, specifically, on Spain's policies towards the European Union.
